

SUPPLIER WARRANTY

This is to confirm that all polypropylene films supplied by PROTOS PACKAGING LIMITED comply with the following UK and European food contact regulations:

Statutory Instruments	(UK)
2006/1401
2003/1941 (amended 2004/1188)
Directive 94/62/EC	(EU)
Directive 97/48/EC	(EU)
Directive 02/72/EC	(EU)
Directive 04/19/EC	(EU)

In addition we confirm that polypropylene films supplied by PROTOS PACKAGING LIMITED meet the year 2001 requirements of less than 100ppm for total incidental lead, cadmium, mercury and hexavalent chromium.

The level of migration has been measured according to the rules specified in Directive 97/48/EC Chapter 1 – Food Simulants, paragraph 2.1 and Chapter 2 – Migration test conditions as in paragraph 2.1 (simulants A, B and C) and 2.2. NB: In accordance with EU Directive 2002/72/EC and amendments, the migration should be measured on the finished packs using the actual foodstuffs or appropriate food simulants at the real food/temperature conditions of use, according to the rules specified in EU directives 97/48/EC.

We confirm that polypropylene film supplied is not toxic and is internationally approved for direct contact with food. However, it should not be ingested.

Although polypropylene is not flammable it could, at over 280oC, melt, drip and fume. Do not inhale fumes. Ventilate adequately when heat sealing; keep molten polymer away from skin, clothing or any combustible material. Allow heat seal areas to cool before handling packages.

Polypropylene film is a stable product. Solvents and coatings are not used in its manufacture. In addition polypropylene has the potential to be recycled according to the requirements set out in the 94/62/EC Directive; It can be sold for recycling, disposed of in registered landfill or incinerated without producing unpleasant or harmful byproducts. Controlled incineration should take place between 700oC and 950oC.

Care should be taken during all stages of handling and storage. Strict adherence to UK directives on Health and Safety at Work is recommended.
